Copy of the Decision of the Harbor and Land Commissioners in the matter of the Boundary Line in Tide Waters between the towns of Eastham and Wellfleet. Viz

Boston Oct 8. 1885

To the Towns of Eastham and Wellfleet.
In the matter of the Boundary Line between the tide waters of said Towns on the Massachusetts Bay side this Board after hearing the parties and considering the evidence find.

That "Indian Brook" and "Hatches Creek" are one and the same stream, and that the centre or thread of this stream is the boundary line between said Towns from its head at the County road, to its mouth, that is, to where it empties into Wellfleet Harbor at the outer edge of the Marsh.

That there has been no material change for many years in the course of this stream and that upland change has occurred, has been gradual and the result of natural causes, and that the stream has not, by reason of such change ceased to be the boundary line.

That the monument described in the legal as standing on the bank or marsh at the mouth of the stream was placed on the bank or side of the stream at some little distance from the outer edge of the marsh, rather than in the centre of the mouth for obvious reasons of convenience or necessity, and that the reference to this monument does not control the general description which makes the stream the boundary line, as it runs to the mouth of the same.

That the action of this Board in locating and defining the boundary line between the tide waters of said Towns, as it is set forth in its report and plan No 2 dated May 1 1885, and filed in the registry of Deeds for Barnstable County, and in the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth, was correct and that the boundary line described and defined in said report and plan is the true boundary line.
